SNATCHING DEFEAT FROM THE JAWS OF VICTORY: THE 2022 US MIDTERM ELECTIONS AND THE IMMEDIATE FUTURE OF NATIONAL POLITICS IN THE UNITED STATES

17 February 2023

Campus de Melun - Amphi Reine Blanche

Historical trends, economic uncertainty and Joe Biden's eroding popularity had led many pollsters and observers of the American political system to announce a red wave (a large Republican victory) during the midterm elections of 2022. If, technically, it can be said that Republicans won the midterms (they gained eight seats in Congress), the reality is that there was certainly no red wave and Joe Biden could easily be described as the night's biggest winner. As the 2024 presidential election is now around the corner, this conference will analyse the results of the last midterm elections to try to understand where the American electorate is at these days and how strong the two parties but also the different (potential) candidates for 2024 are.

Hamed JENDOUBI is a member of the Pôle Langues at Panthéon-Assas University, where he teaches Legal English. He has a PhD in American History -his doctoral dissertation focused on the use of presidential signing statements by the George W. Bush Administration- and his research revolves around the American presidency and the American Constitution. This conference will focus on the aftermath of the recent Dobbs v. Jackson Women's Health Organization Supreme Court decision that overturned the Roe and Casey precedents and sent the subject of abortion back to the states. Both the constitutional reasoning behind the decision and its legal and practical consequences will be discussed.
